Life, love & leadership in Antarctica

If you're looking for an opening/closing keynote; a lively and unique session within a conference program; or an after-dinner speaker that will inspire, challenge and entertain your audience - this is it.

This presentation provides a compelling insight into the highs and lows of 18 strangers living in complete isolation in the most remote place on the planet, for an entire year. With awe-inspiring images of Antarctica, plenty of humour and using real-life stories, Rachael takes the audience on an emotional journey revealing the truth behind life in this most fascinating and isolated environment.

Rachael has a treasure-trove of funny, inspiring and moving stories for this keynote presentation. She will work with you to ensure that, no matter the theme of the event, your audience will be challenged and delighted.

PRAISE FROM BUSINESS LEADERS

"All delegates were impressed with Rachael's presentation. The Antarctic must be an awesome place to be and she is obviously a wonderful leader. Made us all want to go there for the experience."

Transport Women Australia Ltd

"Excellent. Rachel was interesting, down to earth, and most pleasingly encouraged our somewhat reserved delegates to become very vocal asking questions and requesting further insights in to her experience."

Sarah Carnovale, The Australian Glass & Glazing Association

"We enjoyed Rachael's presentation very much. Her 'down to earth' style and 'out of the box' stories of her experience in Antarctica meant that the audience was able to engage with her very quickly and remain interested throughout her entire presentation. There was a terrific balance between her stories and her leadership lessons which were made all the more credible by Rachael relating them to what was happening on a day to day basis. Her photographs were enchanting and enabled everyone to gain an understanding of life down there, which was an added bonus. Her honesty and her humour were also really well received." Medicare Australia
